Ralph Hudson has erected a powder mill near a certain bridge called Hook's Marsh Bridge, upon land pertaining to the inhabitants of Upshire and Hallefield, to the great nuisance of the inhabitants there, and of all others passing by the footway leading by the said mill and the barges lying & there constantly being and to the great danger of the inhabitants and of their cattle daily passing the said mill, and has obstructed the way leading from Hook's Marsh to Edmonsee, to the great danger of the inhabitants, they being deprived of the accustomed way. Therefore, it is ordered that the said Ralph Hudson, without delay, shall remove the said mill and restore the said way, under penalty of forfeiting to the Lady of the Manor, for every week the same shall continue, £5.
