During repair works to the sluice and entrance channel at Newton's Pool.

View looking south. Abutment of bridge visible in left, extreme foreground.

Between the ladder and the shovel, on the far bank, is a brick lined pit with a drain to the entrance channel. This feature was excavated by Mr. J. Muirns & was thought to be a latrine pit for an inn which stood on the site when the channel was a lock on the River Lea Navigation.
