All the photographs are of L189 [in 1955]

George W is holding an explosive charge, probably the fuist to be initiated in the chamber. He is standing in the camera room doorway whilst the industrial is standing by the control room door. I don't think the B+W 189 high speed camera was installed at this time. Judging by its pristine appearance the facility had only recently been completed.

The two smaller photos show the results of a detonation that has wrecked the roof venting flaps (views looking down inside from the sandbagged parapets). They were removed after this.
